Include units that will lead to at least one degree-specific major

Make sure you include core units and/or option units.

Include foundational units

Foundational units are compulsory for your degree, regardless of your choice of degree-specific major. Check your course rules to see if foundational units are required for your course.

Consider a second major or minor (optional)

You can choose an additional major or minor from any degree area, as long as you meet the prerequisites. Make sure you include core units and/or option units.

Include bridging units (if applicable)

You may be required to take bridging units if you have not completed the pre-requisite ATAR-level study (or equivalent qualification) for your major/s. Check with your Student Advising Office.

Include broadening units

You must complete 4 broadening units (24 credit points) from outside your degree-specific major sequence by the end of your course. It's a good idea to study at least 1-2 broadening units in your first year. Foundational and bridging units do not count as broadening.

Choose electives

Once you've included units for your majors, minors, foundational units, bridging units and broadening requirements you may have space for electives. Electives can be chosen from any units offered in your course, subject to unit rules. View the list on the Handbook:
